

Story Outline

On a Monday morning at 7:30, just as Celine thought it would be an ordinary day, she received a call from a friend informing her that she had won the lottery jackpot. The unexpected news left her dizzy with excitement. Once she calmed down, she decided to find the ticket at home and claim her prize, but an unfortunate accident prevented her from redeeming it. However, Celine realized that she was rich enough. In the end, she played the records she found, tidied her room, and cheered herself up to face the new day.

Exposition & Tension Building

Accompanied by the alarm clock, Celine wakes up in bed. After turning off the alarm, she gets out of bed and receives a phone call from her good friend Kate.

Multimodal Elements
Visual Elements: Lighting transition: The story begins with the lighting transitioning from dark to bright, illustrating the process of Celine waking up from sleep. Alarm Clock: The alarm clock displays “Monday 7:30”, indicating the date and time at the start of the story. The changing colors of the alarm clock attract the audience's attention and encourage interaction. Auditory Elements: 3D Audio: Both the alarm clock sound and the phone ring use 3D audio, adding a spatial dimension and providing cues to the user. The volume increases as the user approaches interactive objects. Ambient Sounds: Birdsong and occasional traffic sounds serve as background noise, creating a morning atmosphere. At the beginning of the story, I deliberately avoided melodic background music. Instead, realistic sounds like the alarm clock, phone ring, and phone vibration evoke the tranquility of an ordinary day. Voice of Kate: I chose a joyful female voice for Kate, which breaks the initial calmness of the story and sets an emotional tone for its development.
Space Design

The bedroom is a private space, typically filled with items closely connected to its owner's daily life, representing a safe and comfortable zone. I set the story's beginning in the bedroom to give the audience a quick understanding of the main character.

- The style of the single bed and vanity reveals that Celine is a young single woman.
- The graduation certificate on the desk, the bookshelf and the file box beside the desk are to tell the audience about her educational background
- The time displayed on the alarm clock and her internal monologue after turning it off hint at her professional background.
- The musical instruments in the room introduce her hobbies, while the photos on the vanity suggest she has a good family and social relationships.
- The compact size of the room and its simple, cozy decor reflect her economic status.

Through the design of the bedroom space, I aimed to portray the character of a contemporary young office worker who often dreams of getting rich overnight.

Action Analysis

	What action	Who	Emotion	How
1.	Wake up and turn off the alarm.	Main Character: Celine	Grogginess transitioning to alertness.	Click on the alarm
2.	Get out of bed and walk toward the door		Routine calmness	Use the keyboard to move the main characters
3.	Answer the phone		Curiosity and surprise	Click on the phone

Use of symbology/iconography/metaphors

The change of light (from dark to light) and the ambient sound heard (played) after turning off the alarm clock create the emotional transition. Marks the start of her day and sets up the story's timeline.

Monday morning marks the normalization of people's lives, symbolizing the start of a new workweek and a sense of fresh beginnings. The fatigue and complaints of returning to work after a vacation showcase Celine's everyday life, setting a contrast between this routine and the subsequent extraordinary event of winning the lottery.

The trigger for the phone ringing is placed along Celine's direct path from bed to the bedroom door, symbolizing how Celine often wakes up and immediately heads out the door to prepare for work, overlooking the items in her room and the precious meanings they carry in her life.

Rising Action & Climax

Celine walks out of the room into the living room, turns on the TV, and watches the lottery program. Upon confirming that she has won the jackpot, she bursts into ecstatic joy.

Multimodal Elements

Visual Elements:

1. Lighting transition: The lighting changes with Celine's emotions and the progression of time. It turns a tense red while waiting for the host to announce the results. When she finds out she's won, vibrant, changing colors are used.
2. Animation: As Celine waits for the results, the TV gradually zooms in from her perspective. After discovering she has won, the entire scene rotates around her.

Auditory Elements:

1. Audio Effect: Distorted and blurred TV sounds combined with a heartbeat effect create a tense atmosphere. Loud applause and cheering heighten the climax.
2. Background Music: When the TV is turned on, the ambient birdsong stops to focus attention. After the host announces the jackpot winner, cheerful background music reflects Celine's surprise and joy.

Space Design

The living room serves as the connection between Celine's external life and her internal life. Key elements include:

- Coffee Table holds fruits, snack and a TV remote.
- Exercise Equipments repurposed as a makeshift clothes rack.
- A potted plant adds a touch of nature to the room
- A vinyl record hints at Celine's hobby.

Action Analysis

	What action	Who	Emotion	How
1.	Walk into the living room	Main Character: Celine	Curiosity, wanting to confirm the result	Use keyboard to move the character
2.	Turnon the TV and watch the lottery program		Before the results: Nervous After the results: Ecstatic joy	Hover and click the TV remote

Use of symbology/iconography/metaphors

The coffee table, still holding fruits and snacks from a previous night. This detail reflects her lack of attention to her own living space.

Idle exercise equipment and record symbolize Celine's neglected goals and hobbies, reveal a contrast between Celine's good intentions and the reality of her daily routine.

Houseplants usually symbolize a healthy, vibrant lifestyle. However, the potted plant placed in a neglected corner suggests that Celine does not give it the attention it needs, mirroring her own self-neglect.

The enlarging TV signifies her mental and emotional immersion in the moment, the heartbeat sound builds suspense, and the red lighting adds to the tension. These elements work together to create an intense, focused atmosphere of anxiety as Celine awaits the lottery results.

Upon discovering she has won, Celine's scale increases, and the walls rise and spread apart, visually expressing her overwhelming joy and sense of liberation. The rotating scene emphasizes her dizziness and disbelief, conveying the transformative impact of the news on her perception and emotions.

Falling Action

Celine begins to search for her lottery ticket but cannot find it. However, she recalls many beautiful memories. Suddenly, she hears birdsong from the balcony. She then notices a bird flying away with her winning ticket.

Multimodal Elements

Visual Elements:

3. Lighting transition: After her joy, the timeline moves to dusk, and the lighting shifts to a warm yellow to match the evening setting.
4. Animation: Interactive objects change color continuously before interaction, attracting the audience to click. Subtitles appearing after interaction display key moments from Celine's past.

Auditory Elements:

3. Audio Effect: 3D bird sounds guide the user, leading them to explore the story's conclusion.
4. Background Music: Calm, soothing music reflects Celine's transition from ecstatic joy to a peaceful state as she reminisces about her life. The music stops when she sees the bird flying away with the ticket, mirroring her shock. Finally, the upbeat record she plays signifies her readiness to face the next day with a positive attitude.

Space Design

At this stage, I progressively unlock different rooms of the house to guide the audience along the narrative I have set.

Interaction Stage 1: Self-Exploration

In this phase, the audience is placed in the living room with the bedroom door open, while the balcony and kitchen remain inaccessible.

The audience is able to explore the living room, discovering memories related to Celine's past hobbies through items like vinyl records and roller skates.

Afterward, they might enter the bedroom to view memories related to her achievements, such as graduation certificates and trophies.

Interaction Stage 2: Exploration of Family and Friendship

In this phase, the audience moves to the deepest part of the bedroom to explore a photo album documenting family and friends.

After viewing the album, access to the kitchen is granted, the audience will see Celine's mother's recipe.

Interaction Stage 3: Conclusion

In the final phase, the balcony becomes accessible, and the sound of birdsong emanates from it.

The audience can go to the balcony to witness the conclusion of the story, where the winning lottery ticket is taken away by a bird.

Action Analysis

	What action	Who	Emotion	How
1.	Interact with memory items	Main Character: Celine	Warmth, Nostalgia	Hover over and click on interactive items
2.	Navigate to balcony and witness the conclusion of lottery ticket		Curiosity, Shock	A bird sound audio leading the audience navigate to the balcony
3.	Return to the Living Room		Disappointment, Contemplation	Use keyboard move out balcony
4.	Play the Record		Hope, Future Outlook	Click on the record and place it into the record player

Use of symbology/iconography/metaphors

Before the lottery program ended, the items covered in black material did not attract attention. However, after watching TV and fantasizing about getting rich overnight, these long-overlooked black items suddenly sparkled brightly. As the audience interacts with them, these items gradually regain their original colors. People often mistakenly believe that only wealth can bring a good life, but a beautiful life is never far away from us.

The bird flies away with the lottery ticket is like fleeting opportunities. This plot metaphorically illustrates how luck can come and go quickly and is difficult to control. Rather than dreaming of overnight wealth, it's better to cherish the real-life moments before us.
